COMMENTS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE TOWN MANAGER

The lien process will soon be starting for 1970 taxes. The extra costs involved can be avoided if real estate taxes are paid prior to receipt of the notice.

Thursday evening there will be a meeting of the Assessors to set the tax rate for 1971 taxes. It will be either $50.00 or $51.00 per thousand. There is an increase in valuation of approximately $350,000 over last year. Much of this is due to the 25% increase in land value that was applied this year.

The Donated Commodities Program is going to continue for the present at least, the same as it has since it started. We have found, to have the same program, it will cost the town more to administer it if we change. All applications will be reviewed in the Town Office. Some will be requested to produce more verification of income and assets than has been required in the past.

At the end of the first six months of the year, our various accounts indicate we will follow budget funds quite closely for the year.

Narcotics and You

This is the fifth in a series of articles prepared by Richard McCann, drug counselor at Telstar Regional High School.

Hallucinogens

Drugs in this category have strange and dramatic effects on users. Because of their effects, they are commonly referred to as "psychedelics." The hallucinations generally caused by their use take the form of visual, hearing, or feeling things in a different way or even experiencing things which do not exist at all. This is called the "trip".

Hallucinogens occur both in natural and synthetic states. Commonly abused natural varieties include: Ergot (a grain infection from which natural LSD was first extracted), mescaline (from the peyote cactus), and psilocybin (from a mushroom). The latter two substances have been used legally by some American Indian tribes in their religious ceremonies. Other types include certain varieties of morning glory seeds, catnip, and even nutmeg. Commonly abused synthetic hallucinogens include S. T. P. ("Serenity, Tranquility, and Peace") and laboratory produced Lysergic Acid Diethylamide (L.S.D.).

L.S.D. was originally thought to have some medical value in the treatment of mental disorders. Most experimentation in the area has been discontinued because of the dangerous side-effects of the drug. L.S.D. is an odorless, colorless, and tasteless substance which can be obtained in liquid, pill, or capsule form. One ounce will provide about 200,000 average doses. It is generally put on a sugar cube or on food prior to use.

The peyote button ("mescaline") is dried and ground into a dark brown powder. Occasionally it is placed in a gelatin capsule, but usually the powder is taken in conjunction with a drink which has a strong taste. Mescaline often has an extremely bitter taste; therefore, soda, coffee, etc., are used to disguise the bitterness.

Psilocybin is available in many forms: crystals, powder, or liquid. Many hallucinogens actually act as stimulants, making the body—especially the brain—work much harder than is normal. When stimulated by these drugs, the brain loses much of its ability to control and understand what the eyes see. Colored visions may appear to float in the air. Walls, floors, and ceilings become living things which move and change dimension, color and form. Many of these visions may so frighten the user that he reacts by doing himself physical and/or mental harm.

As a hallucinogen acts on the brain, normal emotions and reactions tend to be greatly magnified: simple friendship becomes deep love, simple dislike becomes intense hate, fright becomes acute panic, and what seems to be a nice idea becomes a profound realization.

Bizarre behavior is often a result of the use of substances in this category. Those well publicized cases of users, thinking they were invulnerable, stepping into the paths of automobiles and trains are examples. Others, genuinely believing they could fly, have jumped to their deaths from buildings. It should be emphasized that these types of behavior are not isolated incidents; they are common! For this reason, most hallucinogen use takes place in group situations where a "trip guide" is present to control dangerous behavior or to try to supply aid in the event of a "bad trip".

Proponents of these drugs would have us believe that they can increase creativity. So far, almost every study of these substances has proved that paintings, writings, and other works produced by people under the influence have been no better, and in most cases, have been poorer than works produced under normal conditions.

Scientists and medical authorities point out that there is no way to predict how these drugs will affect a user or what will happen to him while he is under the influence. There is the additional danger of "flashback" (reliving a trip weeks, months, and sometimes up to two years later). Another potential danger involves the possibility of both chromosome damage and birth defects, but there is no conclusive evidence of these at this time. Finally, there have been documented studies which indicate that use of hallucinogens has resulted in both temporary and permanent psychosis and mental disease.

In attempting to identify the user, one should look for some of the following symptoms: enlarged pupils, flushed face, cold chills, increased blood pressure, nausea, and sweating. Behavior varies widely: the user may sit or recline quietly in a trance-like state, or may appear fearful or terrified. In either case, it should be apparent to the observer that the victim is either losing, or has lost, touch with reality.

Penalties under Maine Statutes concerning the possession and sale of illegal drugs of this type range from a minimum of up to $1,000 fine and up to eight years imprisonment to a maximum of up to $5,000 and up to 20 years imprisonment.

This is the sixth in a series of articles prepared by Richard McCann, drug counselor at Telstar Regional High School.

The limitations imposed by time and space have prevented the inclusion of many other types of abused drugs: cocaine, paregoric, antihistamines, tobacco, and dozens of others. I have not mentioned alcohol in any detail even though it is the most commonly abused drug of all. The problems associated with it are so common that they have been widely discussed in hundreds of other series and articles. In this, the final article, I would like to make a few random observations and some suggestions concerning drug abuse.

First, abuse is not limited to big cities, the ghettos, the rich, or the poor. It is everywhere including S. A. D. #44, and it has reached serious proportions. Something must be done and quickly. Let's not have the same things said of our area that are being said of many others, such as Boston and its surrounding towns. While I was on special assignment with the Drug Control Unit of Boston's Vice Squad, a police captain made the following statement to me: "Ten or maybe five years ago, when this really began to spread, if we had been given just a few more trained men and some cooperation from the public, we would now be able to control this problem. We didn't get the men or the cooperation, so now all we're able to do is to occasionally slow this cancer down. It is out of control, and God help us all in the next generation!" While many may consider this to be a drastic statement, one has only to look at the drug scene in Boston to be convinced.

What Can We Do?

1. We must have total community support—support which is sadly lacking now.
2. All citizens must work closely with all agencies dealing with the problem: the schools, social agencies, law enforcement units, and service organizations.
3. We must begin at home. Remember that many drugs do not come from Boston; they are taken from our very own medicine cabinets.
4. We must set an example in our own personal use of drugs if we are not to be hypocritical.
5. We must face reality. Too many parents, when confronted with evidence that their child is involved with drugs, react by A) dragging the child to the police or family physician in a fit of anger or B) angrily disavowing that their child could possibly be involved. These are childish and unrealistic reactions.
6. We must seek aid. Help is available through the school guidance facilities and drug counseling, Oxford County Mental Health Association, and Drug Abuse Centers in surrounding cities.

It should be remembered that drugs are only a symptom of another problem, perhaps a potentially more serious one. Any consideration of either prevention or rehabilitation must include the development of a better self-image in the user, improvement of family relationships, and better mental health.

Many people have suggested that drug abuse is just "a passing phase", and that it will fade from the scene just as other fads of the past have. An attitude such as this serves only to demonstrate the ignorance of those who believe it. Recognize the following facts, and draw your own conclusions:

1. Moderately the drug affects the day from withdrawal and the next from the effects of an overdose.

2. Statistics indicate that the addict's life span may be shortened by as much as 20 years.

3. Addicts follow a definite pattern of crime to support their habits. First there is theft from family members and then from neighbors and businesses. Girls often turn to prostitution to earn the needed money. Abusers often entice others into drug use—selling in order to support their own habits.

4. Drug experimentation involves a double element of risk—that involved in possessing an illegal substance and the dangers inherent in the drugs themselves.

Finally, remember that withholding information and thereby protecting the pusher is simply giving him a blank check for the lives of those close to you. You will be allowing

There were 13 present which was rather unique because there were 13 graduates in 1921. This made 11 in attendance who were Mrs. Orville Sias Davis, who made the reservations at the inn for us, Mrs. Lida Carlsley Todd, Mrs. Helen Caswell Chute, Mrs. Florence Bennett Johnson, Mrs. Elmer Saunders Mattor, Mrs. Rose Chaplin Bischoffberger, Mrs. Gladys Moulton Knights, Mrs. Mary Buck Grant, Miss Julia Morse, Mrs. Elizabeth Saunders Young and Olive Pingree Davis.

After dinner the group retired to the addition at the Country Way Inn, sat around the table and discussed interesting topics pertaining to former and present activities of the group and individuals. The party broke up about 4 o'clock.

This group has held a class reunion for many years and hope to continue the get-togethers yearly for a long time. See you next year girls.

RING FAMILY REUNION

Back in 1899, the family of B. Colby Ring decided to have a get-together. We met on the Ring farm on Howe Hill.

This year, 1971, it was decided to have such a gathering again. Only this time we met at the home of Roy and Norma Knight, on the so-called mountain, between Greenwood City and Locke Mills, Sunday, June 20.

There were 33 present. The oldest one was Mrs. B. Colby Ring, age 92. The youngest was Danny Michael Ring, age three months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Caskey.

The day was greatly enjoyed by all, talking over what had happened in the past 72 years. The men enjoyed playing horseshoes. A pot luck dinner was served at noon.

Those present were: Mrs. B. Colby Ring, Mrs. Beattie Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. David Ring and family, West Paris; Mr. and Mrs. Berry Belanger, Oxford; Mr. and Mrs. William Ring and family, Wilton; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Caskey, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Caskey and son, Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Caskey, Ithaca, N. Y.; Dr. and Mrs. B. Albert Ring and family, Burlington, Vt.; Nolan and Terry Martin, Bryant Pond; Mr. and Mrs. John Yates and family, Greenwood; Murray Ring, Bridgton; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Knight, Locke Mills.

A family letter was read from Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McDonald and family, Great Barrington, Mass., who could not attend.

It is better to have common sense and no education, than to have an education and no common sense.

That belief on me, the works that I do shall be do also, and greater works than these shall be do, because I go unto my Father."

This passage will be read from "Lesson and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy. "Faith's immortal idea is sweeping down the centuries, gathering beneath its wings the sick and mending My weary hope tries to read the that happy day, when man shall recognize the Science of Christ and love his neighbor as himself, — when he shall realize God's omnipotence and the healing power of the divine Love to what it has done and is doing for mankind."

The members of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Main and Tenth Streets, Berlin, N. H., have invited the public to attend the service begun at 11 a. m. Sunday School for pupils up to 20 years of age is held at the same hour. Visiting pupils are welcome.

home plate and back stops on the athletic field from the northeast corner to the southeast corner of the field. According to Bernard Gatchell, supervisor of building and grounds, the cost of preparing a baseball diamond in the latter site would be less, as there would be prohibitive expense due to a great amount of grading necessary in the former location. Mr. Gatchell is to prepare estimates on costs of loaming, crowning and seeding of the upper athletic field to be presented at the next board meeting on July 19.

The board approved an amendment to their rules and regulations providing that a representative selected by the Teletar Student Council will serve as an ex-officio member (not to have a vote or participate in the executive session).

Approval was granted the appointment of John Appin to serve as cross-country coach and assistant track coach during the 1971-72 school year.

The board chairman, John Brown of Bethel, read a letter from the M. S. A. D. 41 Education Association, notifying the board of education to regulate wages, hours, working conditions, and contract grievance procedure prior to the filing of the budget for the fiscal year.

Superintendent Robert J. Gerardi was directed to reply to the Association in behalf of the chairman.

Mr. Gerardi informed the board that there has been much discussion among the administrators regarding making Andover Elementary School a pilot elementary school for the District. Because of its size, it is said to be an ideal school in which to try new and innovative programs.

With this in mind the board decided to send Robert Hamor, Andover principal to a three day institute on non-grading at St. Francis Xavier University in Antigonish, Nova Scotia, on Sept. 1-3. Board member Eddie Snyder of Andover, was approved to accompany Mr. Hamor at district expense.

The board granted final approval to the negotiations with administrators (secondary principal and assistant principal) and the elementary principals.

Because it falls on a legal holiday, July 5, the board voted to cancel its first regular meeting in July.

Board members absent Monday evening were: William Cousins, Mrs. Margaret Croble, Bethel; Raymond W. Seanes, Greenwood; Robert Davis, Newry; and Milton Mills, Woodstock. Staff members present were: Bernard Gatchell, Brian Flynn, Edward Flynn, Robert Hamor, and James Johnson.

The next regular meeting of the board will be held in the Lecture Hall at Teletar Regional High School at 7:30 Monday evening, July 19.

Stevie Annis, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Annis, is a patient at Maine Medical Center, Portland. Mrs. Florence Greenleaf of Springfield, Mass., was a week end guest of Dr. and Mrs. John Trivard and family.

Ronald Deegan left Tuesday for Camp Agassiz, Lake Thompson, Oxford, where he has summer employment as a counselor.

Robert Keniston is at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Keniston, after teaching Home Ec at Nokomis High School in Newport this past year.

When the Woodstock Senior Citizens met on Thursday, July 1st, at their regular meeting. They will have as guest speaker, David D. Thompson, Bethel. He will tell of his extensive travels abroad. The Co-Ahead P. T. A. will serve lunch at this time.

At the girls' dormitory, special uniform security police were employed to protect the students. Naturally, there was much tension and certainly there was much added expense, as this man roamed free.

Ultimately, the defendant was brought to trial and the jury brought in a verdict of guilty. But, in the Great State of Maine, this individual was at large, awaiting a date for sentencing. Finally, yesterday, 22 June, 1971, perhaps two months after this criminal tried to attack a young girl, during most of which time this individual was free, he was sentenced. Yes, Judge Roberts, sitting on the bench for the May term of Superior Court, Oxford County, in the Great State of Maine, sentenced this harmless little guy to from two to five years in prison, AND THEN SUSPENDED THE SENTENCE.

Now, I believe in the rights of the individual, but the little girl in the dormitory is an individual, and her classmates are individuals, and all the mothers are individuals, and this guy just shouldn't be loose. What do we have to do, wait until he strikes again. You mothers out there, with teen age daughters, do you think this is right?

If this complete miscarriage of justice stings you, as it does me, with almost unbearable outrage, if you feel that a judge who permits such a travesty in his court should have his knuckles really rapped, then please write to me and tell me how you feel, and let's get up on our hind legs and let the Great State of Maine, and the whole world know how we feel.

Very sincerely,
Samuel Bigelow

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

23 June, 1971
Box 52
Bethel, Maine

To all Editors
To all the Press
Gentlemen:

In April, 1971, a man broke into a girls' dormitory in the Great State of Maine, and assaulted and attempted to rape a young girl student, age 17. Through great presence of mind and cool courage, the girl managed to escape personal injury.

The man was identified and brought to justice by the combined efficient efforts of the State Police, the Sheriff's Department, and the town police. Arraigned before a Grand Jury, the man was indicted for Assault with intent to commit Rape, and was imprisoned, with bail set at $20,000.00. Within a few days, bail was reduced to $10,000.00. I don't know why. You don't know why. I wonder if the judge knew why. This man is alleged to have a record as long as your arm involving him in similar incidents. So, friends, and/or relatives of the defendant put up bail, and the defendant was released.

At the girls' dormitory, special uniform security police were employed to protect the students. Naturally, there was much tension and certainly there was much added expense, as this man roamed free.

Ultimately, the defendant was brought to trial and the jury brought in a verdict of guilty. But, in the Great State of Maine, this individual was at large, awaiting a date for sentencing. In this day and age when so many companies are offering automobiles for sale and such has such a wide selection of models to choose from, it is very difficult for an individual to decide where to go for a new car. All the companies advertise that their cars are the best, but who is to say what car is it? It is obvious that all the cars are the market today must have their good points, or they wouldn't have survived the ups and downs of the business. We therefore can conclude that the real difference in buying a car is with the dealer to you buy it from.

The ideal dealer to buy a car from offers a fair price on the new unit as well as an honest dollar for the car you trade in; however, the most important factor in the service that one receives on his new car year after year.

GREENWOOD CITY

— Mrs. Colista Morgan, Corras. —
The winds, those great travelers, were pushing clouds over the hills as I started for a woodsy hike at one thirty.

My first companion was the thrush singing a duet with the brook; a gurgling murmur of the stream and the mellow whistle of the thrush.

The shimmer and shine faded away as I took a trail into the shadows of the ridges and the dusk of the forest.

In places there was the thick smell of rotting logs, wet mosses and fungi.

I found a perfect chair, a flat rock, a yellow birch for a back rest, so I sat. At my feet, right, was an arrangement of ferns, left, "Jack," a quaint little preacher encoined in his delicate pulp. All around me, strange eerie music like the tinkling of a thousand chiming little bells could be heard, voices of richness. These friends were missing nothing, glancing around with vigil-lant eyes. There also mingled the long sweeping sound which the wind made as it blew over the miles of the forests, ending with a soft sigh in the birch above where I sat.

For sometime I enjoyed this kind of timeless passing which was like the flowing of a mountain stream. Then I moved on and up the mountain through the green world full of wet and tremulous perfume that changed with almost every step.

An open field was my destination where I viewed the mountains, and found all horizons filled with a faint powder haze.

A single silent hawk rode the wind and before I located him with my binoculars he had taken the long course down the valley.

As I walked, the blue eyed grass looked up. On my return home I had to read again Frank B. Fletcher's, "Blue-Eyed Grass" which I'll share with you. Maybe it will hold for you as it does for me many memories and certain sadness.

"The blue-eyed grass! I sometimes wonder why

So few have sung its well-merited praise.

They neighbored me in far-off bare-foot days,

These bits of blue dropped from the cloudless sky.

So unpretentious, yet so full of cheer, were they;

So independent, yet harmonious;

So prim, erect, unceremonious;

Worthy their place in June's lovely bouquet.

Only in memory I see them now.

Do they still share in that rural display?

So transient but so welcome was their stay.

Well, I have seen and loved them, anyhow.

Still of themselves they leave one deathless clue:

Oh, that we all, like them, would be "true blue!"

The rue enameled lingered especially around the roots of trees.

On a small birch sat the black and white warbler with something in its beak, and a watchful eye on me.

Then from almost under my feet where the ground hemlocks grew there came an explosive whir of wings, and my heart skipped a beat as a partridge came toward me with whining cries and a "broken" wing.

In a moment it flew away. I explored for some time hoping to find and take a picture of its nest. As I moved from sight it always returned but I had to leave defeated.

Meantime I had found the catbird's nest secluded in a low spot in a lilac hedge.

The "man about town," the flicker, was about on friendly terms with the song birds.

I picked and ate some of the ripe strawberries hanging beside the wall upended by the sun.

Queen Bumblebees who dig their home in the sand and sleep while all the wintry land is damp and chill was about today lively and big as she searched for pollen and nectar.

On flickering wings a lonely swallowtail butterfly stopped on a flower. Her silken wings began to weave up and down in pure joy at the scent and color and taste of the nectar in the flowers' hidden honey cups. She smelled her way with two thread like feelers on her head and saw the colors with her compounded eyes. Her mouth, a long thread-like tube, she keeps in a roll beneath her "chin" when not in use. Now she was sipping nectar much as you would sip lemonade through a straw.

She seemed to whisper, "If you'll give me sweet from your honey cups I'll promise you ripened seeds."

"Drink your fill," the flowers nodded.

Glancing at my watch I found that two golden hours each set with sixty diamond minutes had vanished so I had to be on my way.

I took another hasty look for the partridge nest but again she was too clever for me.

I traveled down the mountain to meet the blue of the water while across the valley the mountains thrust their heads into the dome of the sky in which floated little white boats.

MANY HOSPITALS LET MOM STAY WITH CHILD
The presence of a parent can often do more to help a child recuperate than anything else. Realizing this a great many hospitals have radically changed their visiting hours and overnight stay policies for the parents of a hospitalized child. Knowing the temperament and emotional reactions of your children you should inquire about this before planning any admission to the hospital.

We hope it never becomes necessary but if you do have to plan an overnight stay with one of your children, we can make you up a small kit of nighttime essentials to help you to be more comfortable.

Due to the increased number of prescriptions and in order to keep up good service, it would be to our mutual advantage, if you would please phone in re-fill prescriptions. — Thank you.
